PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

Over the past 27 years, I have built my career around one core strength: identifying why performance is moving in the wrong direction and fixing it in a way that lasts. At Coca-Cola, I coordinated four operations and a team of 10 across Paraíba and Rio Grande do Norte, led the technical modeling of a US$4 million distribution center expansion, and increased inventory accuracy in João Pessoa from 67% to 98%. I later stepped away from the corporate track to run my own food truck business, where every operational and financial decision was mine — an experience that sharpened my understanding of cash discipline, trade-offs, and execution under real financial pressure. I then returned to leadership roles in hospitality and, more recently, to commercial intelligence: at Bravi, I reduced sales-force target processing from five days to four hours. My strongest contribution is combining analytical rigor with hands-on operating experience to diagnose problems, implement practical solutions, and ensure results are sustained over time.
